A STEAMER'S EXPERIENCE In South American Waters-How the Philadelphia Escaped Gun Boats at Port

New York, Oct. 17.—The steamship Philadelphia, of the Red Star line, arrived from South American ports last evening at Brooklyn. This is the vessel that had quite an experience with Venezuelan gun-boats. The ships of this line carry the United States mails.

this line carry the United States mails. A reporter boarded the Philadelphia shortly after her arrival at her dock, but her commander, Captain John Chambers, and two mates were off. The reporter, however, saw Quartermaster Benjamin Ingemanson, and Engineer Edward Roebling, and between them, got the story of their trip.

"Wo left New York," they said, "on September 22, and struck Curacoa in about a week. We had some passengers. While lying at Curacoa, Captain Chambers learned that Port Isabella, our next stop, was booked. He telegraphed the Kearsarge, lying at La Guayra, to see us safe into Port Isabella. We left Curacoa about 12 that night. Lhe following morning we sighted the Kearsarge, lying outside Port Isabella.

"Just about the time we sighted her the Venezuelan gunboat Pamtura cameright out towards us. The Kearsage was on the watch and she steamed up between the Pamtara and us. The Kearsage then came alongside of us and the Kearsage commander told our captain to regulate his speed by the Kear-

Kearsage then came alongside of us and the Kearsage commander told our captain to regulate his speed by the Kearsage and he would see us in. We steamed about fifteen miles with the Kearsage alongside of us. The Venezuelan gunboat did not bother us. The Kearsage frightened her.

"We dropped anchor off Port Isabella and the Kearsage did the same. We were only about 150 yards apart. Then we got orders from the customs house at Port Isabella to come into the dock and discharge cargo and put off to Port Isabella. We had another cargo.

"The day before we left La Guayra the Venezuelan gunboats Pamtara, Carbonese, Parsara and another received orders, as we were told, if we attempted to enter Port Isabella to sink us. That did not scare us much. We had an Armstrong rapid-firing twelve-pounder on board that would sink any of their gunboats. Then, most of our crew of fitty-four are men of the naval reserve who can handle a vessel well. Why, if they had shown real fight we would have rammed them.

"Well, when we heard they proposed coming for us we immediately got up all steam we could and ran out for Port coming for us we immediately got up all steam we could and ran out for Port Isabella.

"The Venezuelan gunboats were then eight or ten miles from us. When they caught sight of us they came out off shore. We steamed more in shore and seemed the swifter. We ran clear away from them and out of range of their guns. When we got near Port Isabella the Kearsarge came out and took us in harbor. We lay there all that day till late in the evening, when we started for Curacoa again, the Kearsarge seeing us out.

At Curacoa we remained a couple of days and then went back to La Guayra, again missing Port Isabella. We were in La Guayra about three hours this time for the mails, and from there we came straight on to New York, beinging office and hides as cargo and some passes. coffee and hides as cargo and some pas-sengers. When we were at La Guayra these three hours a detail of about a dozen United States Marines with officers came on board. They came in a steam launch from our man of war the Chicago. There were other marines in boats around our vessel to be put on board if needed. When we got out of La Guayra the marines left our ship and went back to the Chicago. We left there a week ago to-day."

A FOOLISH LOVER

ter Layne, one of the best known young men of Crawfordsville, committed suicide because his sweetheart, Miss Maud Brooks, went buggy riding with a rival. Layne had been absent during the week and returned to the city yesterday afternoon. Almost the first thing he saw was Miss Brooks whisking past in a buggy with George Little. Layne eaw was Miss Brooks whisking past. In a buggy with George Little. Layne walked at once to a hardware store and purchased a revolver. He then passed two hours calling on friends and bidding then an affectionate farewell saying that he intended to take his life. At 8 o'cleck in the evening he proceeded to the residence of his father, George Layne, and called him out in the yard. He stood some moments bethe yard. He stood some moments be-fore his father and then suddenly pulled the weapon from his pocket, placed it to his right temple and fired. He fell forward into the arms of his agonized parent whose shricks aroused the neighborhood. The affair has caused a profound sensation and Miss Brooks is almost insane.

Mr. Gerry Getting in Hot Water. New York, Oct. 17.—A novel organiz ation was developed yesterday. An anti-Gerry society composed of children of the stage was formed. Its members are not very old but they are very much in earnest and they propose to show Mr. Gerry what it is to have a real show Mr. Gerry what it is to have a real fight on his hands.

The meeting was held at home of Edith Widmer, the Shakespearean reader, and Zelda Sanders was chosen President. Ways and means were discussed in true parliamentary fashion and it was resolved to carry the war in the enemy's camp and strive to depose Mr. Gerry. "In a few days," said the petite president, "we shall issue a circular to all children on or off the stage, throughout the country and ask them to assist us in forming 'The Anti-Fanatic Influence League."

San Francisco, Oct. 17.-At 4:20 the family of Rev. W. W. Ferris, who occupy the Laidley mansion near Black Point, were rudely awakened by a loud explosion caused by a metoer striking the windmill. A FOOL BLUNDER

Of the New York Banquet Committee and a French Officer's Rebuke.

New York, Oct. 17 .- The Times says: There could not possibly have been any disposition on the part of the committee of arrangements for the Lenox Lyceum dinner of last Thursday night to overlook in its invitation any of the distinguished foreign officers in port, distinguished foreign officers in port, yet it appears that, in the confusion and mass of details attending the preparations of that affair, such distinguished visitors as Rear Admiral d'Abel d'Libran and his officers of the French fleet were forgotten. The blunder, for it was evidently such on the part of some subordinate, was not discovered until well into the afternoon preceding the very night of the dinner. To make matters worse the invitations to the captains and junior officers of the Italian and Spanish war ships had been duly extended and acknowledged and there was every reason to believe that Rear Admiral d'Libran had knowledge of what had been done. There edge of what had been done. There was no time to lose, and with commendable haste at even that late period the committee on arrangements succeeded in placing in the French admiral's hands an invitation at 4:30 clock. Now, human nature in a Frenchman is much of the same order as in most men of other countries. Suffice it to say that Rear Admiral d'Abel d'Albran was at first a little sur-prised, and then mad in fine French It was not sufficient to the admiral

It was not sufficient to the admiral that he had received an invitation somehow and anyhow, but it was, in his opinion, an insult to the high dignity of his rank, to say nothing of the government he represented, that he should be expected in a couple of hours' notice, to prepare for abanquet of ceremony. Just as the ward room officers of Arethuse were arranging themselves around the ward room table of that ship, a written order was handed to the ship, a written order was handed to the ship, a written order was handed to the two younger commissioned officers of the vessel to proceed at once to the Lenox Lyceum dinner in half dress. The officers on whom this duty devolved The officers on whom this duty devoted looked in amazement at their orders, read them to their seniors, and amid a roar of laughter from the ward room mess each dived into his state room, flung himself into the prescribed light half dress and with the laughter of their mess-mates still ringing in their ears, the officers rushed on deck and over the ride into the lost awaiting them.

the side into the boat awaiting them.
It was not a pleasant duty that devolved upon those two young French officers that evening. If no one of the officers that evening. If no one of the committee of arrangements recognized the reproof of the French admiral the officers of the Italian and Spanish war ships did, and the French officers were well aware of the look of surprise which their appearance in half dress occasioned on the Italian and Spanish officers that night. officers that night.

Tribute.

While it is over thirty years ago since Allcock's Porous Plasters were first introduced to the medical profession and public, the marked success and unprecedented popularity which they met with not only continues, but steadily increases. No other plasters have been produced which gain so many testimonials of high value as those continuously accorded to Allcock's Porous Plasters, and the only motive for these exceptional tributes lies in the fact of their being a medicinal and pharmaceutical preparation of superior value. Additional proof of the true value of Allcock's Porous Plasters lies in the fact that they are being largely imitated by unscrupulous persons, who seek to deceive the public by offering plasters which they claim to be the "same," "equal," "as good," "better," "best porous plaster," etc., while it is in general appearance only that they resemble Allcock's. Every one of the so-called porous plasters are imitations of Allcock's Porous Plasters.

A Cholera Scare. While it is over thirty years ago since

A reported outbreak of cholers at Helmetta, N. J., created much excite-ment in that vicinity. Investigation showed that the disease was not cholera, showed that the disease was not colora, but a violent dysentery, which is almost as severe and dangerous as cholera. Breadstuffs and Provisions.

Chicago. Oct. 17.—The provision market opened strong on small receipts of hogs and the good demand for them reported from the yards. John Cuddhy & Co. were the best buyers of January pork at the start, but everybody appeared to want it. Schwartz, Dunee & McCormick took between 2509.000 and 3,009.000 pounds of January ribs. There was no hesitallon on the buying side, and prices gathered strangth as the session progressed. It has been a general belief here that the receipts in the northwest would let up, but instead the arrivals, if anything, are larger than they have been. Notwithstanding this and exthordinarily heavy receipts locally, wheat here opened quite firm at the price it closed at on Saturday or a little botter. The firmness, too, was in the face of the fact that the Liverpool market was easier. The market became very dull after an half hour of moderately active trading. On a large increase in the visible supply, the market became quite strong, making the best prices of the day towards the close.
